Tourism represents a comfortable solution for everyone who wants to break routine and escape life and work pressures, as well as to travel and explore new destinations. Through this, a tourist can discover the natural and cultural potentials of each country they visit, and see the way these nations greet their guests in their own style. That makes anyone eager to collect lots of souvenirs they get, and lots of memories in pictures they take, that's because there are a lot of fabulous nature landscapes and landmarks that tourists seek in every destination they visit, like Eiffel Tower in Paris, the Leaning Pisa Tower in Italy, and Giza Pyramids in Egypt.

Algeria is also amongst these destinations; it dominates the world of tourism thanks to its rich and unique cultural and natural potential. Land of civilizations and cultural diversity since the prehistory and the neolithic era, starting from the Phoenician and Byzantine civs, to the other civilizations like the Roman, the Spanish and the French, and the Islamic civs like the Andalusian and Ottoman states.

Algeria gathers the four initial colors in its nature. It is a land covered by the blue sky and Mediterranean Sea, its green mountains and heavenly forests and oases, its yellow golden dunes in a large rich Sahara, and its red Tassili and Ahaggar mountains in the extreme south, in addition to its white unique architecture and snow, that coronate it as an angelic bride. This makes it a continent country, that contains different climates, and a variety of cultures that belong to one nation, each region with their own dialect and customs.

It is also thanks to its tangible heritage like traditional food dishes, clothes and jewelry, in addition to many historical and archaeologic sites that often amaze visitors for their well-preserved shapes and details; as well as non-tangible heritage, like traditional music and folklore. The majority of these are classified as World Heritage by the UNESCO.

Algeria is the largest country in Africa and the Arab world with over 2 million and 400 thousand km², and over 1600 km of a golden coastline and green cities from

Taref in the east to Tlemcen in the extreme west. Descending to Tell Atlas mountains, where Roman ruin sites lie like Timgad and Djemila. Then to the Saharan Atlas with its people's customs and generosity, passing by oases and golden sand dunes in Oued Souf and Ouargla, and Ghardaïa the pearl of south in the heart of Algeria. Then towards El Menia with its palm gardens, flowers and tasty fruits, and the charm of southwest cities like Timimoun, Taghit and Beni Abbes. Arriving to the extreme south, the land of desert beauty with the Tassili and Ahaggar mountains and caves, and moon-like landscapes, and nature sculptures which lie side by side with the prehistoric man's paintings and engravings that tell a story of antiquity, an existence of over 5000 years before the Pharaohs' civilization. As well as the magnificent sun rise and sunset views and the impression of these regions' people lifestyle, from Arabs and Touaregs.
